encountered many great challenges, she overcame and lived proudly like a phoenix bird.

Along with the life of the main character, the reader sees a vibrant time in Vietnamese history from the perspective of the common people. This woman is less educated but charming, strong, wise and especially keeps great faith in herself.

Her youngest daughter, the author of the book, asked about her mother's life year to 6, delve into her 15-year-old and after 30 years of preparing documents written in 2 years. Since the 1990s, she and her mother have returned to Southeast Asia to find their roots and Vietnamese blood.

"The roots of Vietnam have made me connected to my homeland, making me want to do something for the mountain children to go to school " - she confided.

In 2016, she set up the Loan Foundation to support ethnic minority children in the North, invest in kindergarten construction, school reinforcement, and equipment funding for tier 1 and 2 schools. According to Isabelle Muller, it is the fulfillment of the mother's will, the gratitude of those who have helped him, his native Vietnam.
