Author: "With love you build a temple from nothing"

Isabelle Müller from France presents her first book and her story of suffering at the Haus des Gastes in Wildbad

Bad Wildbad (cht). In conversation with Isabelle Müller, sometimes the French Speech melody – it is the only indication that Despite the German family name, they did not Germany originates – her German, on the other hand, is perfect! She comes from France, is but not entirely French, because her mother came from the former Southeast Asian Empire of Annam, which today called Vietnam.

At the beginning of this year Isabelle Müller's first Book with the title »Phoenix Daughter – Hope was my path«. With a reading from this book opened in the guest house the 45-year-old author, who Pforzheim, the Literary Autumn in Bad Wildbad, which the state spa organizes together with the city library.

Originally, according to Isabelle

Mueller, she wanted a book write about her mother Dau-Thi-Cuc, called Loan (=Phoe-nix), a woman, whose strength daughter Isabelle admired and whose motto she also applied to herself: »Out of every Stone that they throw before our feet, we will build our way!« But then, also for a better understanding, she put her own story on paper, and that is so unusual that she almost can't believe it. These are topics from her own life, which the reader witnessed, you gain strength by others, even those who are not well-disposed towards you. Your belief in Isabelle Müller has strongly made – but you can see that the petite and modest acting author does not. She smiles, even when she describes the poor conditions in the family, the terror and abuse by her father, and after Suicide attempts she takes imagine falling asleep with only one happy thought – which, as she herself says, it is quite successful. She remembers events from her infancy and she has Visions and dreams that realize themselves. Müller's motto is simple but admirable. "With Hate tears everything down, but with love you build Nothing a temple« and »One should believe in what you do!« Isabelle Muel-ler is extraordinary: she learns German in record time, English, Russian and Dutch, and for her it was also a challenge, her book in German to write. Sometimes The reader notices this, because its language is clear and simple – very easy to read and understand for the "average reader".
