

Isabelle Müller – here signing – deeply impressed the Fichtenberg audience.

Photo: Private

Despite everything, full of life

Isabelle Müller reads from “Phoenix Daughter” in Fichtenberg

“Phoenix Daughter” has Isabelle Müller her autobiography Now she has Invitation from Fichtenberg

Rural women presented their work – and deeply impressed their audience.

Fichtenberg. “What you give, you get back a thousandfold,” thanked Vice Chair Carmen Grajer of the writer Isabelle Müller for the “totally interesting and exciting lecture”.

At the traditional women's breakfast of the Fichtenberger country women, Isabelle Müller gave an insightful review of the Vietnam in the 1930s and reported on her own childhood and youth in the 1960s in French Ghetto in Tours.

Hostility, humiliation and cruel torture that their Vietnamese

Mestic mother Mè Loan – which means “Mother Phoenix” and from this The title “Phoenix Daughter” is derived from this – experience and endurance. Country woman after the reading. “The had to, the women in the Protestant community center Fichten-

Isabelle Müller has written a sensational autobiography.

mountain audibly gasp for air. And horror was reflected on their faces when the writer told of her two failed reported suicide attempts, because she had been away from her was sexually abused by her French father.

“It is fascinating how cheerful the author is today, although she has experienced so much,” said one Country woman after the reading. “The was the best lecture we have ever had,” said an impressed listener from Fichtenberg, who Isabelle Müller from her recent appearance on SWR television in the Landesschau Baden-Württemberg.

Isabelle Müller was born in 1964 in Born in Tours, France. From In 1985 she worked in Germany as an interpreter and translator. In 1990, she became self-employed as an art dealer and learned on trips to Asia, their Vietnamese roots as well as most Scenes from the eventful life of her mother, Dau-Thi-Cuc, known as Loan. Isabelle Müller is married to a German and has two children. She lives in near Pforzheim.

rs

www.isabellemueller.de