The book was in the top 5 finalists of the Kindle Storyteller Award in 2015 and ranked as a best seller on Amazon (Germany). Former Vice President Truong My Hoa, who played a major role in bringing this work to Vietnam, attended the event. Ms. Truong My Hoa said: "I met Isabelle Müller on a business trip to Europe and was truly moved by the feelings of a Vietnamese girl looking back to her roots."

According to author Isabelle Müller, because she has mixed European and Asian blood (her father is French), she has cherished writing a book about her special mother since she was a child. At the age of 15, she began to carefully record her mother's stories, and 30 years later, she wrote and completed the work in just 2 years. Loan's life went through many bitter experiences due to the old "male superiority and female inferiority" tradition. She did not go to school, had to struggle to make a living, drifting from Ha Tinh to Nam Dinh, Hanoi, Bac Ninh, Hai Phong..., almost being sold to a brothel, but wherever she went, she tried to work for a living.

All royalties from the book will be transferred to the Loan Stiftung charity fund founded by the author to support ethnic minority children in northern Vietnam.
